Frown on "Shimmy" But Say "Jazz" is Graceful

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]
Atlanta City, N. J.—The "shimmy" dance is tainted. That is, it is not acceptable. The International Association of Dancing Masters, recently in convention here, taboed the naughty wiggle, and yet, almost with the same breath, decided the real "jazz" dance surpasses all other, karpischoean, efforts in grace and beauty. Oh, hum! Further, members of the association admitted they knew not who started the awful "shimmy." Of course there was no suggestion as to what they would do should they learn his, or her, identity, but some of the caustic remarks relative to the famous wiggle naturally led to visions of a former popular pastime below the Mason and Dixon line.

Teaches a Million to Sing National Anthem

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]
Boston.—Henry W. Rankin of the naval training station, claims to have taught a million to sing "The Star Spangled Banner" than any other individual in the entire country in the past two decades.

Fliover Bests Box-car in Street Collision

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
BRIDGEPORT, Ohio.—The Baltimore & Ohio railroad may have to take some action looking toward the protection of its freight cars running through the streets of this city. A fliover charged a freight car, damaging the car considerably, but escaping with little damage to itself or its five passengers.

ROAD BUILDING DELAYED

La Crosse.—A shortage of labor and materials is delaying the annual road building program. It is almost impossible to get men who are willing to remain out of the country districts, no matter what wages are paid. Stone quarries here are also short of help and unable to produce the necessary materials. Hope of obtaining more from the quarries of Alameda, Wis., has been abandoned because of failure to procure water power connections and consequent lack of quantity production.

HASKIN TELLS OF MISAPPROPRIATION OF TRADE MARKS

known American automobiles. All the registration of trade marks is not done by Latin American countries. It is all done for the purpose of graft. During the war, many enemy aliens took advantage of the law to get hold of American trade marks, and many of the registrations recently protested by the bureau were those of German firms. It is also a common occurrence for a foreign agent for an American concern to register its mark in its own name, as a safety measure in retaining his job. Not long ago, for example, a Latin American agent for an American car company registered a few months, and then the agent failed. All of his property was to be sold at public auction, and among the articles listed was the American car's trade mark registered in the agent's name. Fortunately word of the sale reached the office of the firm in this country just in time for it to communicate with its foreign agent, who was to attend the auction, and attorney secured the trade mark, but only at a high price, after outbidding a German.

Cuban Office Opened.
Recently the Cuban government has evidenced an encouraging spirit of co-operation with the American manufacturers in putting a stop to the trademark traffic. About a year ago an international bureau for trade mark registration was opened at Havana, with an attorney of eminent qualifications and wide experience in trade mark and patent matters. Plans for this bureau were submitted at the Pan American convention in 1910, but it was 1918 before the various countries represented by it actually ratified the agreement. The bureau is now open for application for trade mark registration. Upon the payment of a single fee of $50 you can now register a trade mark in the United States, Cuba, the Dominican Republic, Guatemala, Honduras, Nicaragua and Panama through the offices of the bureau.

When the bureau receives your application, it consults its card index, and if the trade mark is not already registered there, it forwards your application in the various countries. Each country also consults its card index of registrations before passing upon the application. This system has greatly simplified matters, and the bureau is now being established in other international bureaus at Rio de Janeiro to include the most important countries of South America. But it takes time. In the past the slowest of the bureau's work was the slowest of the international bureau came into existence on the Latin Americans, since it was only natural that they should not be half so interested in protecting their goods and before the time seems ripe for them to be shipped to Latin America.

RAILWAY "BOYS" GATHER IN DULUTH

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Duluth, Minn., June 25.—James J. Hills, "boss" of the Duluth, Sault Ste. Marie and Duluth railway, today said that 500 and 600 are in Duluth today. They are members of the "Veterans" association of the Great Northern railway. They have all been in the employment of that company for 25 years or more. Two long trains arrived here early today bringing the convention visitors from all points in the American northwest. One train was made up at Minneapolis and the other from the territory in the states as far west as Washington.

First Cargo of Cotton at Hamburg Brings Inquiries

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Berlin, Wednesday, June 25.—The arrival of the first cargo of cotton at Hamburg a few days ago prompted inquiries of the minister of economics in respect to further shipments. The minister has replied saying that the shipment was for the account of the Czech government and that for the time being German customers would not receive any cotton from cargoes which arrive.

TRACTION COMPANIES CAN CONSOLIDATE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, June 25.—Interurban railway companies may consolidate under a decision announced by the Wisconsin supreme court late Wednesday afternoon. The case arose in the city of Milwaukee, where two companies applied to the railroad commission for permission to law consolidate. The city of Milwaukee objected to the jurisdiction of the railroad commission on the ground that the statutes do not permit a street car company to be merged or consolidated with the traction company, an interurban company. Two companies denied that this restriction existed and alleged that the corporate purposes of both companies included both the operation of urban and interurban railways. They also denied that a traction company has no franchise to operate interurban cars inside the city of Milwaukee by the extension of the corporate limits; and that the two companies as operating concerns are pursuant to orders of the railroad commission operating over the same tracks in the city of Milwaukee within the single fare zone. The trial court held that both companies were organized according to law, and that this law conferred the power to consolidate both urban and interurban railways by purchase one of the other. The application for a temporary restraining order was denied, and the city of Milwaukee appealed from that order. The supreme court reversed the judgment of the lower court in the La Crosse case in which Judge P. J. Gross held that in an emergency did not exist in establishing a six-cent fare in that city.

Entertainment at St. Peter's Church July 1

The program will include a play, "Cousin Frank," will be given by the Misses Ella McGill, Minnie McGill, Gladys Peterson, Clara Meyer, and Dorothy Kueck. Recitations and musical numbers which are now being planned will also be given. Refreshments will be served. No charge will be made for admission, but an offering, for the hymnal fund will be taken.

Snakes in Dry Country Have Officials Puzzled

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]
COLUMBUS, Ohio.—This story has nothing to do with hard liquor or the state of Ohio going dry, but somebody lost a snake in the heart of Columbus. Police saw the reptile fall from the parlor of a hotel, and lie very quietly on the sidewalk. Investigation developed that the back of the snake had been broken. Police think it must have escaped from a side show, but cannot figure how it got up those three flights of stairs.

Gems Sought by Thieves Only Loaned to Wearer

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—Because Nellie Robbins, University of Minnesota student, wore about $10,000 worth of gems in a necklace recently, she has been pestered by robbers seeking those gems. The apartment in which she lives with two other co-eds has been broken into and ransacked three times by eager gem-seekers. Miss Robbins appeared in the production as a model for a local jewelry firm as a bride. She returned the jewels immediately afterward.

Young Joyriders Barred, Time Limit Set by Police

Topeka, Kan.—The police of Topeka have taken the "joy" out of joyriding for all youngsters of either sex under the age of discretion. Orders have been issued to all night patrolmen to arrest all parties of youngsters in automobiles found on the streets after 11:30 at night who do not wear old enough to be out. They will be taken to the police station, where Chief of Police Hannon will give them the double "O." Social standing is no bar to facing the chief, neither is wealth, he says.

ANTI-POLE MOVE IS PUT DIRECTLY UP TO GERMANY

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Paris, June 25.—The German peace delegation has been informed in a note from Premier Clemenceau that the German government will be held strictly responsible for unofficial support of any movement against Polish authority in the territory given Poland in Posen and in East and West Prussia. The text of the note reads: "The allied and associated powers feel it necessary to direct the attention of the German government to the fact that the Polish authorities have come into possession of the attached official German dispatch with states that the German government means to sign the peace treaty they intend to give unofficial support by all means in their power to local movements of resistance to the establishment of Polish authority in the territories allotted to Poland in Posen and in East and West Prussia and the occupation of upper Silesia by the allied and associated powers. In view of this information the allied and associated powers think it necessary to inform the German government that they will hold them strictly responsible for seeing that at the time indicated in the treaty all troops and all officials indicated by the allied commission will be withdrawn and the event of local disturbances in resistance to the treaty no support or assistance to the insurgents is allowed to pass across the new frontier into Poland." (Signed) "G. Clemenceau."

N. P. Issues Are at Stake in Dakota

Fargo, N. D., June 25.—Splendid weather prevails throughout North Dakota today, in which the industrial program of the Non-Partisan league, as provided for in laws passed by the last legislature, is at issue. The league will make for an extremely heavy rural vote, on which the Non-Partisan league forces depend largely for their support. Seven laws are being voted on, being referred to the people by petitions signed by 38,000 electors. The principal laws are those creating a system of state industries and establishing a state bank.

Just a Quiet Smoke, But it Shocked Some

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]
TOPEKA, Kan.—Clouds of smoke coming from the women's waiting room at the Rock Island depot here caused the patrons of the room to make an investigation. Over in the corner, smoking a clay pipe peacefully, was an aged woman, all unconscious of the excitement she was causing. When the matron told her it was not the pipe she smoked, the aged woman calmly went outside the depot and completed her smoke. She said she came from the mountains of Kentucky and was on her way to Nebraska.

BERLIN DISORDERS INCREASE; MOBS CLASH FEDERALISTS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, June 25.—Disorders are increasing in Berlin, the Exchange Telegraph correspondent at Amsterdam reports. Many streets there are barricaded and there have been serious engagements between government troops and mobs. Representatives of industrial councils have assumed full political and military power in Hamburg and are sitting in the town hall, according to advices from Berlin, quoting newspaper articles received there. General Von Lettow-Vorbeck has been ordered to Hamburg with strong forces to restore order.

TEACHERS' SALARIES.

The National Education association will meet in convention at Milwaukee next week. One of the subjects which will perhaps be discussed is salaries for teachers. The association has been waging a campaign for better conditions for teachers. It should have the hearty support of the public.

When one considers that the men and women who teach the children in their tender years wield a strong influence on their lives, one must realize that too great care can not be taken in the selection of these teachers, and too much cannot be done to raise their standards of life to the highest point.

Nearly every state, including Wisconsin, has become actively interested in the problem of teachers' salaries, and 12 have reported the passage of laws materially increasing salaries. What has been accomplished along this line is gratifying, but the problem has not been solved. Increases of 10 to 20 percent, or even more, are not enough to meet the very much greater increases in the cost of living, cost of professional training and other expenses necessary to a teacher. In some states it is legally possible for a teacher to receive the disgraceful salary of $40 a month, and that for six months only. Think of it! Forty dollars a month in these days for the man or woman who teaches your children!

According to the report of the commissioner of education, the average salary paid to teachers in the United States has increased from $543.31 in 1915 to $843.64 in 1918, or 17 percent in three years. In the same time the wholesale price of all commodities rose seven times as much. Is it any wonder that thousands of teachers are living "beyond their incomes" and are either compelled to earn additional money or be supported by their families?

Compare the average annual salaries paid to teachers of this country in 1918, $843.64, with the salaries paid in other vocations and professions. The average wage of 4,115 workers in shipyards during 1918 was $1,411, or 224 percent of the average salary paid teachers. There is no class of workers in the railroad service, not even the section hands, but what receives 107 to 500 percent of the average salary paid teachers.

Investigation shows that low salaries are bringing disastrous results. It shows that there is a shortage of teachers, that many successful teachers are leaving the ranks of the profession, and that fewer students are attending normal and training schools. These three conditions lead in the same direction—backward and downward to incompetency and inefficiency in teaching, at a time when the nation needs, as never before, to have public education built up and strengthened. As a matter of wise policy the best teachers should be held in the profession and the best young men and women should be induced to take up teaching as a career.

CITY PLANNING.

Dr. Nolen, who is making a city plan for Janesville, recently, in discussing the subject, made this remark: "This city at the present time is in the best possible shape for an economical plan. Later it will be more difficult to do the things that at some time will have to be done."

There is a great deal of food for thought in that statement. It might be well for our citizens to realize how much that means. From a financial standpoint as well as from an idealistic standpoint much might be gained in getting strongly back of the movement for a bigger and better city.

Most people do not understand what a city plan means. There is a vague idea in the minds of some that it means the outlay of a huge sum of money to bring about idealistic changes. City planning is a most practical, common sense way of providing for the future at a time when the expense will be minimum. It paves the way for development along natural lines at a time when the best results can be obtained.

Janesville is going to grow rapidly and unless some definite plan for that growth is made, it is going to get out of hand, so that when we are forced to bring about the changes that we will need to, we will be at a disadvantage. In any industrial city, inducements must be held out to the people who work for a living. The time has passed when a working man can be induced to make his home in a place where the conditions are not the best. It is the duty of our citizens to lend every effort to make home conditions here ideal. The workers must have good homes, and they must have recreation. Under the present conditions we cannot furnish them at once, but we can plan for them. We can make efforts now for plenty of playground room.

Those are the things that city planning brings about. If it is started soon enough the taxpayer will benefit by it because the work can be done much cheaper than after the growth has gotten a good start.

Dr. Nolen has been in the city for several days and gives assurance that Janesville can take advantage of her opportunities if the public will give support. Our city officials have given assurance that they will co-operate in the movement.

CIVIL SERVICE JOBS.

Although there is a desire on the part of the congress, the heads of executive departments, and the civil service commission to recognize in all proper ways the claims of returning soldiers, sailors, and marines to employment in the classified civil service, the civil service commission feels that in order to avoid misapprehension certain facts should be brought to the attention of the man.

The law provides for certain preference in appointment in favor of discharged soldiers, sailors, and marines. It should be understood, however, that preference claimants must qualify in open competitive examinations unless they left the classified civil service to enter the military or naval service.

These examinations are announced from time to time to meet the needs of the service. They must be advertised for a sufficient time to give them due publicity; then the papers must be rated, registers established, and claims of preference passed upon.

An act of congress of February 25, 1919, makes mandatory the reinstatement to their former positions of all former government employees who were drafted or who enlisted in the military service of the United States in the war with Germany upon their application and if they have received an honorable discharge and are qualified for the work.

ASK US

The Gazette maintains an information bureau at Washington, D. C., under the direction of Frederick L. McKin. Questions will be answered on any subject. Those desiring information write a letter to the Janesville Daily Gazette, Information Bureau, Washington, D. C., and enclose a stamp. The letter will be answered by our bureau.

Q. What percentage of the human body is fat? K. L. M.

A. About 20 per cent of a normal body is fat.

Q. Is the possession of excessive flesh a disease? D. F. G.

A. Only in rare cases. In lower animals and in savage races, nature stores up food for time of famine by converting it into fat. This provision of nature still operates, despite the lack of the necessity for it, among civilized peoples, and the result is corpulence. By substituting fats for the fatness of old, the flesh can be brought to normal with no bad effects.

Q. Where did Hog Island shipyard get its name? F. C. H.

A. Hog Island was a swamp of waste land when the war came. The name has been attached to it since early days when it was occupied by Indians, but the exact reason for its naming is obscure.

Q. Where can I get reliable information on how to store vegetables for the winter? F. G. H.

A. Information bureau maintained by this paper in Washington will send a booklet containing directions to any inquirer upon receipt of a two-cent stamp for return postage.

Q. Martha Washington is often referred to as "Washington's Wife." Was she married twice? T. O. T.

A. Yes. Martha Washington was the wife of Daniel Parke Custis, who died in 1757. She was married to George Washington in 1759.

Q. Who is in charge of the graves registration service in France? M. A. R.

A. The war department states that the military officer in charge of all American cemeteries in France, and therefore the proper source of information with relation to men buried in France, is Lieut. Col. Charles C. George, graves registration service, American Expeditionary forces.

How he started for the valley against the warning of old prospectors, how the storms nearly drove him mad, how he vindicated the girl's home, was an exciting episode. He had raced back to the hidden vein to beat others who had discovered his secret, how he was tracked by the mounted police for a murder he did not commit and how good fortune made him happy in the girl and his fortune, is graphically told in this interesting play.—From a Movie Mes-Haw.

Sketches From Life -:- By Temple"Maybe It's Brother Bill"*Travelette By Niksah*THE GARDEN OF DINOSAURS.

Undoubtedly the oddest collection of statuary in the world is that of life-sized cement images of the dinosaurs which Carl Hagenbeck, the famous collector of wild animals who supplies most of the zoos and circuses in the world, has made upon his estate at Hamburg.

As you probably know, the dinosaurs were a strange race of animals who inhabited the earth millions of years ago, before man and the other mammals appeared. Some of them were much larger than elephants. Some were harmless, grazing creatures, but others were terrible carnivorous beasts.

The appearance of the dinosaurs is known from fossil remains which have been found. Mr. Hagenbeck has had accurate likenesses made and placed in life-like postures in a park about the edges of a little lake. If a man who knew nothing about it were to come suddenly upon this place, he would probably think he was in a museum. He would know how some people who do not live in dry countries occasionally feel.

Pink elephants and purple kangaroos would be nothing to the image of diplodocus, the largest creature that ever walked the earth. Mr. Hagenbeck's cement likeness of this animal is 66 feet long, and is seen quietly grazing in a little glade. Nearby a grazing, with three horns on its head and weighing a couple of tons, is just emerging from the water, while a tyrannosaurus—a carnivorous brute bigger than a buffalo—is represented in the act of devouring its prey. There are 30 of the monsters and more are to be made.

JUST FOLKS By EDGAR A. GUEST

WILLIAM OSWALD'S DISCOVERY.
When William Oswald Edgingham was born his parents said:

"There never was a child before; with such a noble head."

With pardonable modesty they raved about his worth.

And called their precious little tot the cutest babe on earth.

As William Oswald older grew his folks more loudly raved.

Before his face they pressed to all the way that he behaved.

They told the clever things he did, repeated all he said.

Until at last they had completely turned the youngster's head.

Because he heard his parents brag about him day and night.

He got to thinking that he was the brightest of the bright.

He didn't seem to notice when they gave him his degree.

That ninety other fellows shared his brilliant company.

At last into the world he went in search of gold and fame.

And was shocked to find that no one seemed to recognize his claim.

It troubled him and grieved him and left him much depressed.

To discover no one thought him any better than the rest.

Now he knows that there are others who can do what he can do.

That some know everything he knows, with something added too.

And he tells his foolish parents when they boast of him at night.

That the world is full of people who are marvellously bright.

TRAIN STRIKES AUTO.

Milwaukee.—A man and his nephew were killed Saturday morning, two miles north of North Milwaukee, when their automobile was struck by a Milwaukee road passenger train. The dead are John Schmidt, 48, living in the town of Granville, employed by the Wisconsin Sugar company, Algonquin Falls, and Michael Schmidt, 10, his nephew.

The bodies were thrown many feet and the car demolished. Both were dead and badly crushed when picked up by the train crew. Mr. Schmidt's head was crushed beyond recognition. The boy's skull was fractured.

THE WISHING PLANE

Of course before Jack and Jane and their friends left Rheims after their interesting visit they inquired carefully for information about Jeanne's mother.

No one seemed to know anything about such a woman except one little boy. He told Jack that a lady driven from her home during the war had stopped at his house and that he like her.

When Jack told Ladydear and Jeanne, they hustled over to the boy's house. When his mother saw Jeanne, she, too, thought that the little girl looked like the woman she had befriended.

"I don't think it could have been Jeanne's mother," thought the lady, "because this lady had lost her little girl. Friends had told her that her daughter, who had become lost during the retreat from their home, had been killed."

The chances of finding Jeanne's mother seemed hopeless to Jeanne, but Ladydear cheered her by telling her that the search had only begun.

"Maybe that lady was your mother and the reason that she hasn't looked for you is that she thinks you have been killed," said Ladydear.

When Captain Brave told the children that they were going to leave Rheims, he said:

"We are going to see the places made famous in the war by the wonderful fighting of the Americans. Jack clapped his hands in glee and the rest of the folk were tickled. All had heard how the American boys threw themselves into the war at Belleau Wood, Chateau-Thierry and the surrounding territory to stop the rush of the enemy who were headed straight for Paris and victory."

The next morning they all climbed into the airplane and started for Belleau Wood. It was only a few minutes' ride in the fast flying machine. When the plane finally landed and Captain Brave led the children and Ladydear into the heart of the woods, they could see under what a terrible handicap the battle had been fought and won.

The trees grew close together and the ground was covered with underbrush and bushes. They could see how big shells from the enemy's guns had broken down and even cut off many of the biggest trees. The ground beneath them was torn up by shells. No stories that Jack had ever heard about the war gave him any idea of what this was like. The passed mound after mound where the Americans killed in the battle had been buried. And they passed more mounds where the enemy, too, had been buried. Some of the graves had little wooden crosses above them with the name of the soldier written on them. Other graves had no names at all, and the little folks felt awfully sad to hear the mothers and fathers of the boys in these graves could never see where their heroes were buried.

Captain Brave told them simply, so they could understand, how the Americans had advanced through this tangled woods on that memorable day in July, 1918, while shells and machine gun fire from the enemy just poured in through the woods.

Then they climbed into the airplane again and went to Chateau-Thierry.

EMERGENCY RELIEF!

AFTER a long period of misfortune an unskilled Italian, a citizen of this country for 20 years, sober and good to his family, secured a position that netted him $18 a week, relief and happiness. His insurance had lapsed but the family was beating old man poverty.

Then the "flu" came along. The mother contracted it the day the father died. The plight of the mother and children was desperate.

During the month that passed while the state pension was being adjusted, the wrecked family became a charge of the Salvation Army.

Instead of being thrown to the four winds, AND ALL THAT MEANS, the boy and three girls were kept together and in school, the mother was nursed to health and employment found for her. The baby was cared for.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON
LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Some time ago in your column a young boy asked in disgust why girls literally cover their faces with powder and you answered that it attracted a certain class of men.

I admit I belong to the "certain class of men" you refer to, but I hope this will not bar me from your column this once. It is far from my thoughts to contradict you, but in justice to my sex I should like to say that the way young girls use cosmetics to the detriment of their otherwise good looks is fully as disgusting to us as the best type of men.

Furthermore, I doubt if the young girls you see on the street, painted and powdered so as to represent anything but a rose, are trying to attract men of any type. There are all kinds of men and very few I think but would give them the benefit of that doubt. They are for the most part good girls, but silly and mistaken in their admiration of them.

As a matter of fact, we rather pity indiscretion, naturally supposing they are motherless or that their mothers are off the job.

Speaking only of the young girls, it is time young girls should be taught the reverent respect the most of us men have for virtuous women and try to appear no more like what they are.

Yours truly, W. L. WISHER.

Your meaning is not clear to me. In the beginning of your letter you profess to be of a certain class of men attracted to girls who cover their faces with powder. You then go on to say that you pity girls who do this, and that you would like to see them without their makeup.

It would be impossible for me to name a diet for you. Different foods agree with different people. Get the doctor who said you must not eat butter or meat to tell you what will agree with you. Probably fresh vegetables and fruit would be all right.

girls who do not realize the repulsion of their make-up.

You will admit that a painted face does not suggest virtue. Girls who paint deliberately suggest something they do not really mean because it attracts attention which is misinterpreted for admiration.

There are men who are repulsed by vulgarities in women. They have no desire whatsoever for that class. The men are not cads or too good to live. They are merely of better clay.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Do you know of any simple method of removing warts?

(2) What is a good lotion for keeping the hands soft?

A DAILY READER.

(1) Nitric acid removes warts without any trouble. Buy a small quantity at the drug store and apply it to the wart with the end of a match or tooth pick. Be very careful not to drop the acid on the skin around the wart because it burns. After two or three applications the wart will dry up and fall off. No scar will be left.

(2) Have your druggist prepare a lotion of the following ingredients: One ounce of glycerine, two ounces of bay-rum, 20 drops of carbolic acid and enough perfume to kill the unpleasant odor of the carbolic acid.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: My face is broken out from eating too much butter and meat. I am going to quit either one. Please name a diet for me.

GINGHAM AND LACE
MAKES COOL FROCK

The gingham frock is more popular this season than it has been for some time. Pretty plaids which are so becoming to everybody except a woman who needs to reduce are made up in any number of attractive styles. Many are trimmed with white piped collar, cuffs and vestees and others use white organdy for trimming. The long straight lines popular during the past winter and fall are in highest favor for these frocks, but there are many very pretty ones with full bellows, tunics and overskirts and some with three or four ruffles over the hips.

The frock pictured has a rather new and pleasing idea. It combines Venice lace with French blue plaid gingham. The lace is used to make the blouse and it extends over the hips. The frock is cut on very simple lines with pouch effects at the hips and a row of covered buttons reaching from the neck to the hem emphasizing the long lines. Short sleeves are a feature of the frock which the youthful women with well-formed arms will welcome. The narrow leather belt fastening at the back gives a neat finishing touch.

A CHANCE TO LIVE

ANNIE'S FIRST REAL TASTE OF PLEASURE.

Annie's spirits rose as they walked down Broadway in the half-holiday. Young Carrell was easy to talk to; he did most of the talking himself. As they passed Wall street he gazed down its crooked canyon with an admiring eye.

"That's the little secret!" he cried. "There's where the dough is! Just you keep an eye on little Bernie and you'll see him dodging down there one of these days in his automobile to keep a date with a millionaire."

"Is it so easy to get rich?" asked Annie.

"Well—you got to get in with the right crowd," declared Bernie.

When they were on the boat, well forward to get the cool bay breeze, Bernie talked some more. He told how he had his "tips" sometimes picked up and took "flyers."

"Why, I couldn't make out on only my salary," said Bernie. "I've got $20 a year to pay on boat club dues alone."

Annie was even more interested in the boat club than in high finance. And as Bernie would rather hold forth on those subjects than anything else, and could not always get so eager a listener, they were soon getting on swimmingly.

"There's a dance on at the club this very night," he presently remembered. "Come on—go! You'll have a terrific time."

Annie thrilled at the thought. But "the right clothes."

"Shucks! Wear what you got on. You look fine in that. Nobody fuses up."

Pineapple Punch—Beat slightly one very fresh egg; add two tablespoons of water and two of pineapple juice; strain over crushed ice, and sweeten to taste.

Fruit Punch—Pour two quarts of boiling water on two teaspoons of tea and let it steep for five minutes, then strain into a large bowl. Add two cups sugar and one tumbler lemon juice. When cold add the juice from a can of sliced pineapple and the slices of pineapple cut in thin pieces. Put a large piece of ice in the punch bowl and pour the punch over it. Be sure and cut the pineapple with a silver-plated knife, as steel gives it a metallic taste.

Rhubarb Wine—Take the stalks of ordinary rhubarb, also known as waterberry, cut in pieces of one or two-inch length to fill a one-gallon jug or jar and add two pounds of white sugar, one pound of brown sugar and sufficient water to cover all of contents. Add a handful of dandelion leaves; they give the wine a fine flavor.

Place in a warm room and cover with a board. Allow to remain four days—no longer. Then drain into a jug. Be sure to squeeze out all the juice from the rhubarb. Pour all the liquor into the jug and throw the rhubarb away. Tie up the mouth of the jug with a rag and place a flat stone on top. This excludes the air and allows the superfluous gas to escape without exploding the jug.

For the next three weeks add sweetened water sufficient to keep the jug brimful.

After the third week, drain liquor through a cloth into a clean jug and place in a cool cellar where the sunlight cannot strike it and let it stand for eight months. Be sure to have the jug covered so that no air can get in.

TESTED RECIPES.

Steamed Snowballs—One-half cup fat, one cup sugar, one-half cup milk, two cups flour, three teaspoons baking powder, whites of three eggs. Cream the fat and add sugar gradually. Sift flour and baking powder, add alternately with the milk to the first mixture. Add the stiffly beaten whites. Turn into a greased oiled pan. Cover and steam 35 minutes. Serve with strawberry or other fruit sauce.

Sour Cream Sauce—One-half cup sour cream, one-quarter teaspoon salt, one teaspoon powdered sugar, three tablespoons chili sauce. Beat the cream until stiff, gradually add the seasonings and chili sauce and serve

Pieces of Eight

Being the authentic narrative of a treasure discovered in the Bahama Islands in the Year 1907—now first given to the public.

"That's what it is," said the Englishman incontinently.

"But doesn't it strike you as strange that she should pay her bills with Spanish doubloons?" I asked.

"It did at first," he answered; and then, as if annoyed with himself, he was attempting to retrieve an expression that carried an implication he evidently didn't wish me to retain.

"Of course, she doesn't always pay in Spanish doubloons. I suppose they have a few old coins in the family and use them when they run out of others."

It was as lame an explanation as well could be, and no one could doubt that, whatever his reason for so doing, he was lying.

"But haven't you trouble in disposing of them?" I inquired.

"Gold is always gold," he answered, "and we don't see enough of it here to be particular as to whose head is stamped upon it, or what date. Besides, as I said, it isn't as if I got many of them; and you can always dispose of them as curiosities."

"Will you sell me this one?" I asked.

"I see no harm in your having it," he said, "but I'd just as soon you didn't mention where you got it."

"Certainly," I answered, disguising my wonder at his secretiveness. "What is it worth?"

He named the sum of sixteen dollars and seventy-five cents. Having paid him that amount, I bade him good-night, glad to be alone with my eager, glowing thoughts. These I took with me to a bit of coral beach, made doubly white by the moon, rustled over by giant palms, and whispered to by the vast living jewel of the sea. I took out my strange doubloon and flashed it in the moon.

But, brightly as it shone, it hardly seemed as bright as it would have seemed a short while back; or, perhaps, it were truer to say that in another, newer aspect it shone a hundred times more brightly. The adventure to which it called me was no longer single and simple as before, but a portentously confused goal of cloudy splendors, the burning core of which—suddenly raying out, and then lost again in brightness—were the eyes of a mysterious girl.

CHAPTER II.

Under the Influence of the Moon.

My days now began to drift rather aimlessly, as without apparent purpose I continued to linger on an island that might well seem to have little attraction to a stranger—how little I could tell by the mystification of the good Tom, to whom, for once, of course, I could not confide. Yet I had a vague purpose; or, at least, I had a feeling that, if I waited on something would develop in the direction of my hopes. The doubloon still suggested that it was the key to a door of fascinating mystery to which chance might at any moment direct me.

And—why not admit it?—apart from my buried treasure, to the possible discovery of which, the doubloon seemed to point, I was possessed with a growing desire for another glimpse of those haunting eyes. They needed not their association with the mysterious gold, they were magnetic enough to draw any man, with even the rudiments of imagination, along the path of the unknown. All the paths out of the little settlement were paths into the unknown, and day after day, I followed one or another of them out into the wilderness, taking a gun with me, as an ostensible excuse for any spying eye, and bringing back with me occasional bags of the wild pigeons which were plentiful on the island.

One day I had thus wandered unusually far afield, and at nightfall found myself still several miles from home on a rocky path overhanging the sea. There was no sign of habitation anywhere. It was a wild and lonely place, and presently over its savage beauty stole the gleam of the moon rising far over the sea. I sat down on a ledge of the cliffs and watched the moonlight grow in intensity as the darkness of the woods deepened behind me. It was a night full of witchcraft; a night on which the stars, the moon, and the sea together seemed hinting at some wonderful thing about to happen.

Then, as if the fairy night were matching my thoughts with a challenge, what was this bright wonder suddenly present on one of the boulders far down beneath me?—a tall shape of witchcraft whiteness, standing, full in the moon, like a statue in luminous marble of some goddess of antiquity.

My eyes and my heart together told me it was she; and, as she hung poised over the edge of the water in the attitude of one about to dive, a turn of her head gave me those longed-for glimpses of those living eyes filled with moonlight. She stood another moment, still as the night, in her loveliness; and the next she had dived directly into the path of the moon. I saw her eyes moonlight again, as she came to the surface, and began to swim—not, as one might have expected, out from the land, but directly in toward the unseen base of the cliffs. The moon-path did lead to a golden door in the rocks, I said to myself, and she was about to enter it. It was a secret door known only to herself; and then, for the first time that night, I thought of that doubloon.

Perhaps if I had not thought of it I should not have done what then I did. There will, doubtless, be those who will censure me. If so, I am afraid they must. At all events, it was the thought of that doubloon that swayed the balance of my hesitation in taking the moon-path in the track of that bright apparition.

I looked for a way down to the edge of the sea. It was not easy to find, but after much perilous scrambling I at length found myself on the boulder which had so lately been the pedestal of that Radiance; and, in another moment, I had dived into the moon-path and was swimming toward the mysterious golden door.

Before me the rocks opened in a deep narrow crevasse, a long rift, evidently slashing back into the cliff, beneath the road on which I had been treading. I could see the moonlit water vanishing into a sort of gleaming lane between the vast overhanging walls.

Presently I felt my feet rest lightly on firm sand, and, still shoulder deep in the water, I walked on another yard or two—to be brought to a sudden stop. There she was coming toward me, breast high in that watery tunnel! The moon, continuing its serene ascension, lit her up with a sudden beam. O! shape of bloom and glory!

For a moment we both stood looking at each other, as if transfixed. Then she gave a frightened cry and put her hands up to her bosom; as she did so a stream of something bright—like gold pieces—fell from her mouth, and two like streams from her opened hands. Then, as quick as light, she had darted past me and dived into the moon-path beyond. She must have swum under the water a long way, for when I saw her dark head rise again in the glimmering path it was at a distance of many yards.

I had no thought of following her, but stood in a dream among the watery gleams and echoes.

For me had come that hour of wonder; for me out of that tropic sea, into whose flawless depths my eyes had so often gone adream, had risen the creature of miracle.

"Buck," Hero Gunner, at
at Manila Bay, Passes Away

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]

DENNISPORT, Mass.—Patrick Mahoney, known to the United States navy as "Buck," the gunner's mate who fired the first American shot at the battle of Manila, died at his home here.

When the American fleet entered Manila bay during the Spanish war, Mahoney had charge of the of the after six-inch guns on the Boston. As the fleet was going into the harbor the spot in the smokstack of the coal supply steamer Zafra ignited, which drew fire from the forts on Corrigidor Island.

Mahoney set his gun working and those shots were the first fired at the American fleet got into action with the Spanish fleet in the bay.

When the forts surrendered it was found that the gun in charge of Mahoney had done a lot of damage to them.

SCHOOL OF EDUCATION
ESTABLISHED BY U. W.

Madison, June 26.—The establishment of a School of Education in the University of Wisconsin, to further develop and coordinate the university's facilities for the training of teachers, was voted by the board of regents at its meeting Tuesday. Four-year courses for teachers of manual arts and physical education were also laid out.

The new school will bring together under one director a faculty consisting of the members of the department of education, instructors in charge of teachers' courses in other departments, and the staff of the Wisconsin high school.

The students in the school of education will be students in the various colleges or departments of the university who have completed two years of college work, or its equivalent at other institutions, and who register in the School of Education at the beginning of junior year as candidates for the university teacher's certificate. Students electing a teaching major in manual, industrial, or applied arts, or physical education may be registered in the School of Education in their freshman or sophomore years. Students in the School of Education will retain their registration in other colleges and will receive the degree to which their credits entitle them.

Edgerton Hopes To Cop From Janes, Sunday

By George McManus.

BILLED AS THE BEST GAME OF THE SEASON

BY KID BIFF

"The biggest game of the season—the one game we want to win!"

That is the way Manager Smith of the Edgerton Highway Trailers is billing the coming game between his nine and the Lawrence Lunch Janes at Edgerton Sunday afternoon. According to game dope, the curtain on the field of activities—the Driving Park—will rise at 2 o'clock with the home team including in an hour of practice, the battle starting promptly at 3 o'clock.

Although the delegation of fans from Janesville who will accompany the team will not be large enough to fill the stands at Edgerton, it is felt that a pretty good-sized flock will make the 12-mile journey. Edgerton need have no worry about the vocal support the Janes will receive, small crowd or large. When you get a couple of good men like Ed. Winslow and a few others on the job at the ball game you're all set for nothing.

The big bus will leave the Myers hotel for Edgerton at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon, carrying the members of the team, its fighting manager, and as many fans as can be accommodated. The road to the Tobacco City is in good condition and doubtless a number of rooters will go up in cars.

All Edgerton sportsmen are going to turn out for the game and the prediction is made that it will be the largest crowd of the season there.

Manager Murphy is banking on reliable of Sammie Lengquist to hold down the pitching city sluggers—the infield will take care of the pill if by any chance it is hit by a trailer. Lengquist is without a doubt, the best pitcher Janesville has had in years. In the two games he has pitched for the two teams he has succeeded in holding his opponents without a score.

In the 13 innings that he has pitched, he has made a great scratch hit, and only two passes. Edgerton players, please note.

Croak will do mask duty Sunday. Although a little slow, so far he has been able to hold Sam's fast ones. Tidies Pierce is recovering from his injuries and will be able to hold down the short-stop job with Dixon on third. Miller on second and Bond on third. The outfield will be composed of Dopp, Kakske, Viney and Sachs, all of them hitters.

Manager Murphy requests that Black turn in his uniform at the London hotel by Saturday.

Hot Dog! The honorable James A. just blew in with the glad news that he had arranged two games with the Peoria White Sox for July—one at Peoria, July 13, and the other here, July 20. The Janes will meet the Waukegan Central State League at Peoria, Spring City, July 4, and Mukwonago here July 6.

CELLS FOR TOMMIES

London.—Sleeping accommodations are so scarce here that some of London's police cells are being turned into "hotels de luxe" for soldiers.

Thousands of Tommies on leave and on the eve of being demobilized were finding it impossible to find sleeping quarters until the innovation was started.

Now Tommy spends a comfortable night near the prisoners in the "coolers." It beats the trenches at that, according to the khaki clad warriors.

MICHIGAN NINE WILL MAKE 65-GAME TOUR

Marquette, June 26.—The Cloverlands, a baseball team composed of the best talent in the upper peninsula of Michigan, and which starts this week on a schedule of over sixty-five games through Michigan, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois and other middle western states, has been organized here by E. J. Farm, of Ishpeming, manager. About twenty-five applicants for berths in the team were interviewed in a practice game here tomorrow, when the members with three "subs" will be picked. It is a new venture for Cloverland, and the organization is receiving excellent support.

Among the applicants are many notables in upper Michigan baseball history. Latent for the past few years, Cloverland's baseball enthusiasm is now widely awake to the possibilities of the newly-organized team, and every effort is being made to install the confidence of upper Michigan fans into the hearts of the players.

The regular schedule of games will start Wednesday, June 26, when the Cloverlands will play Munising, at Munising. The schedule for the week of June 23-30 follows: Wednesday, June 23, at Marquette; Thursday, June 24, at Marquette; Friday, June 25, at Marquette; Saturday, June 26, at Marquette; Sunday, June 27, at Marquette. Games are also being arranged with Gwin, Menominee and Iron Mountain, which will complete the schedule for upper Michigan.

Mr. Farm has received inquiries from various cities throughout the state, and he is confident that the team will be successful. He anticipates little difficulty getting games and crowds. The Cloverlands will be self-supporting as they go along, charging a nominal fee for admission into each of the games.

Grecian Stoicism Shown by Boy in Initiation

[By Associated Press]

LYNN, Mass.—A modern example of the Grecian stoicism was revealed when Parker Weber, 12 years old, admitted that he had allowed members of a boys' secret society to sandpaper one of his fingers until the blood oozed from the member. The Lynn police are now devoting their best energies to exterminating the society of youthful students of torture.

Although the mutilated finger pained him severely, the plucky youth refused to expose it and refused all explanation as to how the injury had occurred. But pain finally overcame him and he admitted to his mother what the "society" had exacted of him as an initiation.

The principal occupation of the members was devising modes of torture and inflicting them upon aspirants to membership.

SPORT SNAP-SHOTS

BY JACK KEENE.

George Sisler's play at first base furnishes some odd ones often because of the speed with which his mind and body co-operate, but a play he pulled in the recent St. Louis Washington series probably climaxed any stunt he ever pulled. Foster was on first with one down in the eighth inning when Milan smashed a hard bouncer between first and second. Sisler knocked the ball down down about 20 feet inside first base, with his glove hand, and deflected it toward second base. Bronkie was coming over from his position near second to back up a possible double play. The ball, bounding from Sisler's glove, bounced into Bronkie's hands.

Sisler did not know that Bronkie had the ball, but his mind told him that if he did there was a possible chance for a play at first base. Without turning to watch the ball and not knowing where it might be, Sisler dashed to his station, whirled about, and took a quick toss from Bronkie, who himself was no slouch in the performance.

The fleet Milan, and he can go down to first as fast as any of them, was caught by a snap. The play was so smooth and neat that the spectators hardly realized the perfect mechanism and physical skill that operated to make it.

Sports of all kinds are enjoying a wonderful boom—a real comeback—throughout the British Isles this season. Many familiar faces or names, champions are missing on all sports fields, but the games are carried along with intense enthusiasm. The kicking of sports, horse racing, is now in full swing, several of the pre-war skulls.

County cricket was resumed last month after a stoppage since August, 1914. With the exception of Worcestershire, all the counties which competed for the championship, before the war are playing two games each week, which attract large crowds.

While the open championship will be omitted this year, golf is steadily resuming its pre-war appearance. The Professional Golfers' association victory tournament, which was played recently, attracted 103 professionals, including all the leading players. It was won by the veteran James Braid with a score of 155. Harry Vardon was eighth (164), Edward Ray ninth (165), George Duncan eleventh (165), and J. H. Taylor nineteenth with 166.

Athletic meetings are held each week all over the country, several promising youngsters having already been unearthed.

Lawn tennis is enjoying a strong revival, many of the famous old tournaments having been scheduled.

Players in the international league will probably soon be discussing the advisability of including the headpieces similar to those worn rakishly by Uncle Sam's doughboys in the late war, in their equipment. An alarming number of knockouts, in which champions are missing on all sports fields, but the games are carried along with intense enthusiasm. The kicking of sports, horse racing, is now in full swing, several of the pre-war skulls.

Plans Hike to Frisco From Germantown, Pa.

[By International News.]

SAN FRANCISCO.—How long does it take to walk from Germantown, Pa., to San Francisco?

A. Duval of Germantown intends to find out. He has written to the San Francisco Y. M. C. A. that he is nearly ready to begin his little walking trip and will bring it to a conclusion at the local "Y."

Duval states that he is to make "Yoot-a-tour," as he calls it, to demonstrate the value of vegetarianism and the power of endurance of a vegetarian. He is also anxious to establish a record for the walk, he says.

HOOISIER

—the Kitchen Cabinet that saves miles of steps

"The Hoosier will help me to stay young"

"Retain your youthful energy and girlish appearance," is the wedding-day advice of thousands of Mothers. As they look back over the years, they realize that woman's charms soon fade and her health often gives way when drudgery methods rule her days.

But in Hoosier homes, daughters know the miles of needless steps and hours of wasted time that this scientific kitchen helper saves. They honor it for the service it has rendered the "little Mother" who has been able to give more freely of her time to a happy comradeship with her children.

The bride from a Hoosier home will have a Hoosier. It will be numbered among thoughtful wedding gifts or be first on her list of household needs. Other brides should know what the Hoosier means. And millions of tired Mothers should also learn how the Hoosier reduces kitchen work and frees them from burdensome labor.

This scientific labor-saver is within reach of all. Its price is moderate and the terms are easy. Pay one dollar on delivery—the balance in small weekly payments.

Come and see the Hoosier. Come today if you can. Select your own cabinet or the one for the bride-to-be.
